NYC LEGIONELLA

Property Managers / Building Engineer / Real Estate management companies

During the summer months of July and August 2015 recent Legionnaires outbreak, the City of New York has announced their intention to fast track legislation to regulate and inspect cooling towers in order to minimize the potential for future widespread contamination.

The upcoming changes in regulations require your immediate attention. Chemical Specifics, Inc. (CSI) will inspect your facility AT NO COST to address any potential issues that may be impacted by the new regulations.

Over the past 30 years Chemical Specifics, Inc. (CSI) has been providing Water Treatment services that minimize the potential for bacteria, mold, or Legionnaires Disease to develop in buildings where people work, live, or assemble.

CSI is relied upon to test, treat, and maintain the systems that provide air conditioning, heating, and air circulation to their tenants, employees, customers, and occupants.

CSI will assist your building and engineering staff to craft an effective program to test, treat, and maintain your systems within the acceptable indoor air quality standards.

The largest Legionnaires Disease Outbreak in NYC history which started in mid-July has sickened over 100 individuals and claimed 10 lives. This type of contamination, as well as other less lethal strains are not uncommon. The response from city officials is due to the severity and widespread nature of this particular outbreak.

A stringent program of water treatment and professional cleaning of your cooling tower is critical along with the appropriate documentation and logs will provide you with peace of mind and keep your building out of the crosshairs of potential fines and sanctions associated with any new regulations.
